Your Challenge

Public health organizations face increasing scrutiny from legislators and the public; they are compelled to do more with less funding, offer proven program value, and be accountable. Moreover, many organizations face service related mandates that the agency's current systems do not have the capability to satisfy. Health organizations in particular are under constant pressure to enhance service delivery to the public and to the licensed health professionals with additional "on-line" services.

Our Solution

State health agencies can benefit today from integrated tools for managing accountability and productivity. They require enhanced capabilities for data sharing within the organization and with external agencies in order to remain accountable. Management needs the ability to oversee the big picture—the inter-agency communication and coordination, customer services and public protection—as well as the details to make informed decisions and improve outcomes.

CAVU's eLicense is a complete Web-based enterprise solution that enables health agencies to realize the benefits that could be obtained through the use of an integrated licensing and regulatory system. eLicense can facilitate your agency's ability to respond to current and future statutory requirements by having a solution that is maintainable, scalable and designed to meet the mandated processing requirements of health agencies. eLicense helps government health agencies offer their citizens the most up-to-date services while enhancing efficiency and reducing costs.

CAVU Corporation

CAVU Corporation is the leading Professional Licensing software firm providing a superior solution to State and Local governments across the US. With over 20 years in the computer industry, CAVU defined and now leads the market in innovative Licensing software solutions.

In 1997, CAVU conceived and developed their core product, eLicense: the first licensing product based solely on Internet technologies. From that early base product, CAVU has continually refined and enhanced the core solution providing agencies with a rich feature set that easily meets their demands.

Since its initial release, eLicense has developed into the most powerful and flexible solution available typically exceeding customer needs, yet it is easy to use and easy to maintain. Today, the eLicense solution provides proven system functionality including contact management, robust administration tools, fully integrated licensing, enforcement, and online modules, dynamic workflow capacities, and extremely flexible reporting capabilities. Our innovative solution continues to lead the market, let us show you how.
